FOCUS & SCOPE

With neuroscience and biology as the underpinning of all human behaviour, an increasing need developed for the translation of neuroscience research in other fields of study and practice. This journal serves as a vehicle for the scientific translation and application of neuroscience and other biological underpinnings of human behaviour, in the contexts of psychotherapy, psychology and clinical practice, business, education, spirituality and religion, and sport.

Thus, it allows for transdisciplinary integration of enhancing the understanding of human behaviour in different contexts. This journal seeks to serve its readership with the most topical content in the translation of neuroscience for practice and academic pursuits. The Journal of Applied Neurosciences is dedicated to the advancement of applied neurosciences through the publication of scholarly work, case study reports, conceptual papers, and reviews.
